

Mac Hi 1973

Dan Geister

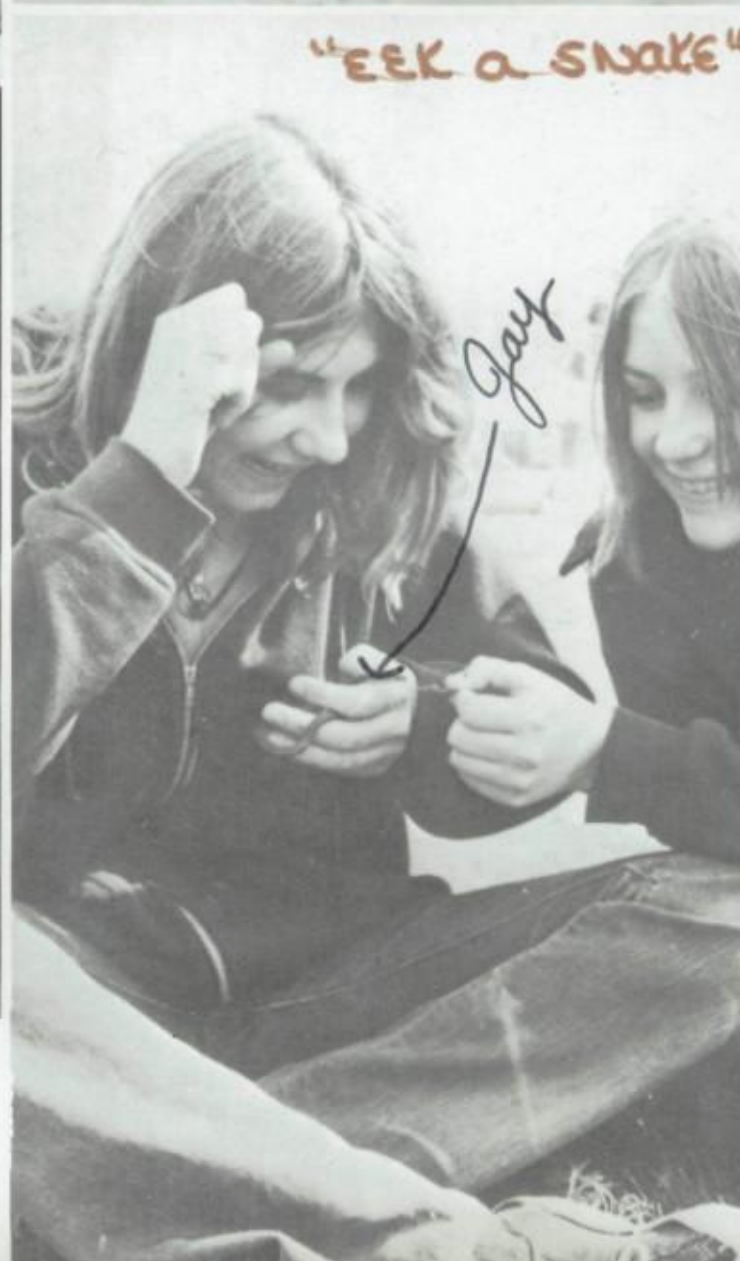

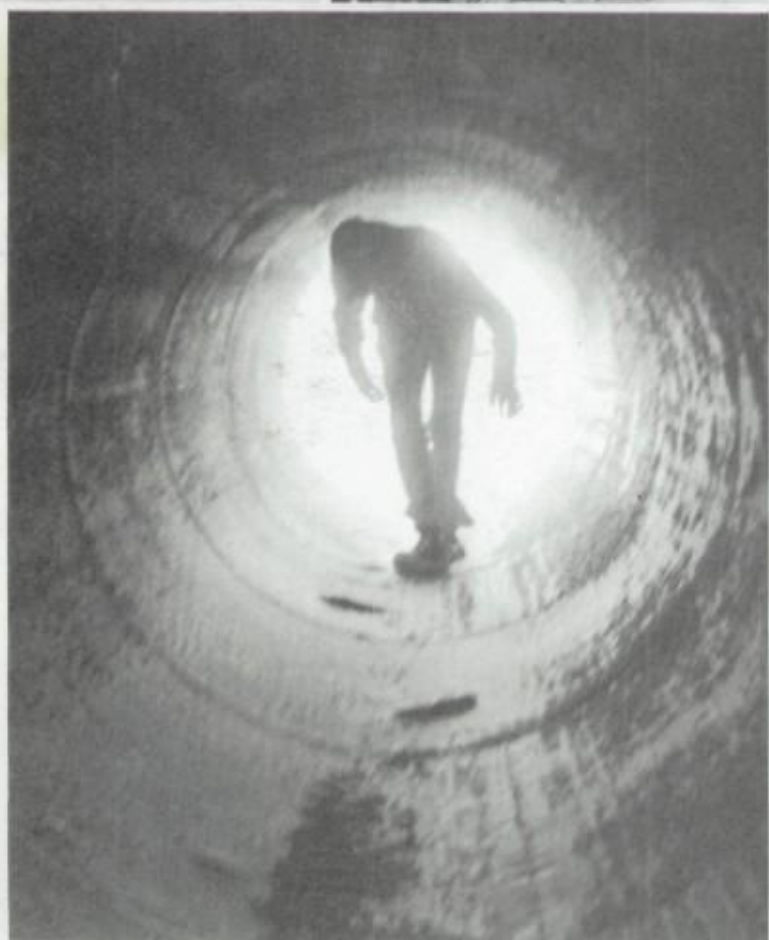

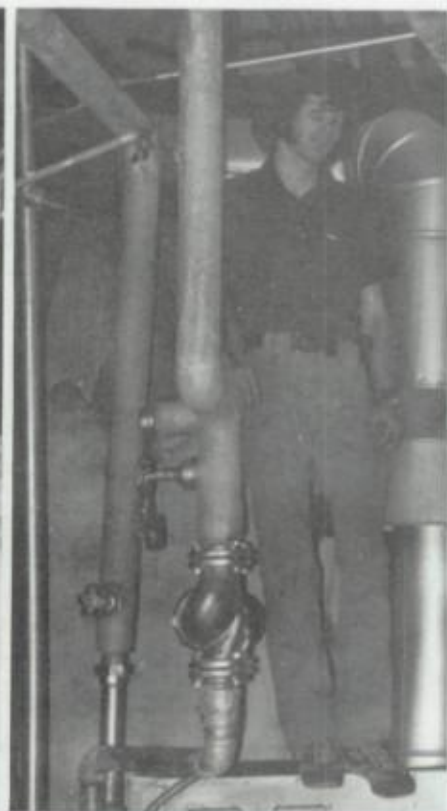

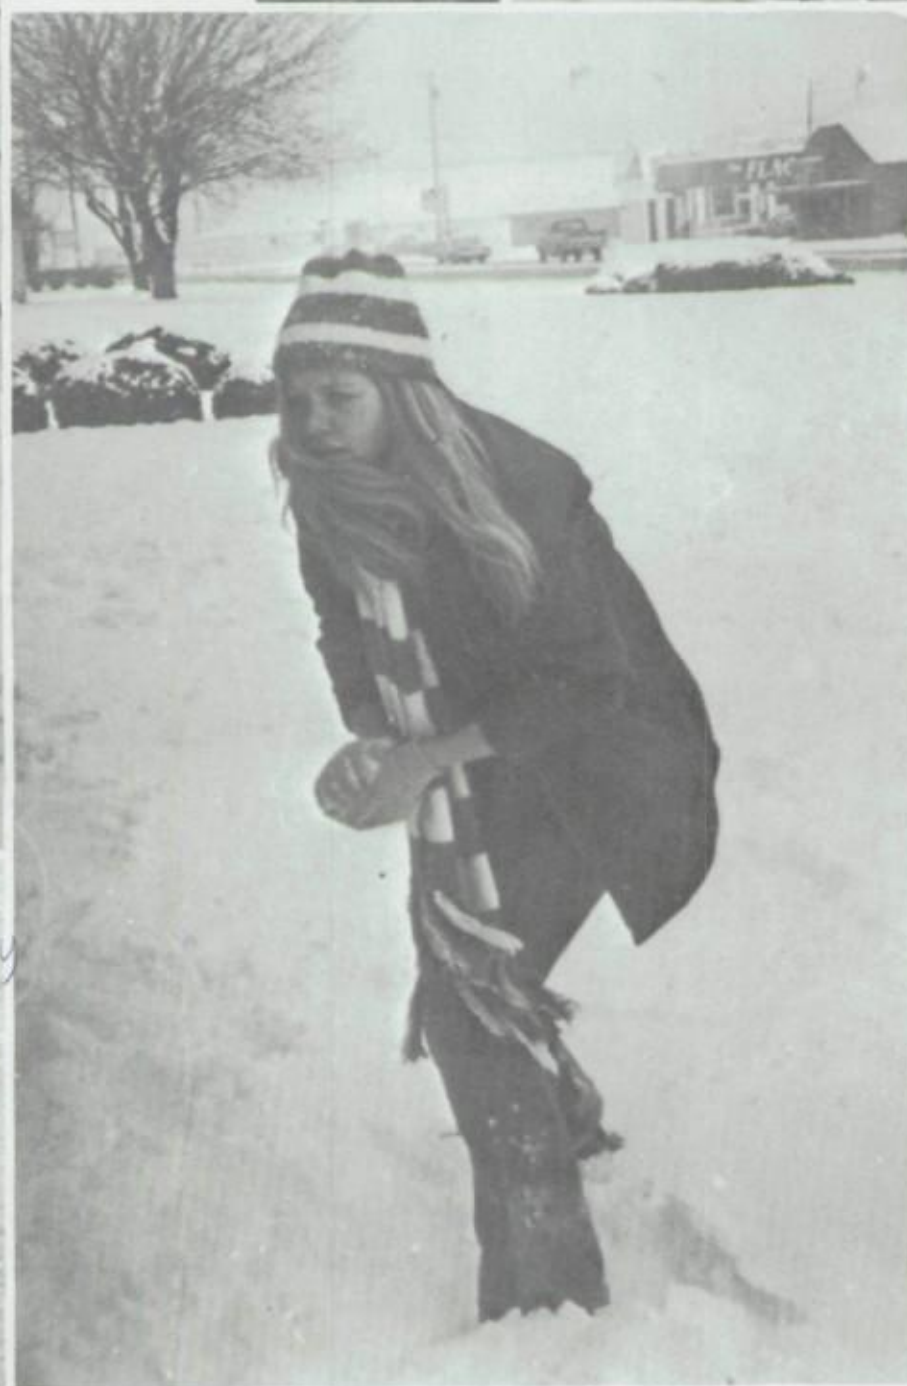

DR. JOHN McLOUGHLIN

..... his greatness of mind and spirit matched his great height, for he stood an impressive 6 feet 4 inches tall. His powerful figure, usually clothed in black, his piercing gray eyes, and the crown of snow white hair that fell to his shoulders made very appropriate the name given him by the natives - Great White Eagle.

If we peel away the deceptive layers of apathy and boredom we discover that this year was one of many changes. Many things happened, many changes were affected or at least begun. But the effects of those changes still remain to be felt.

Nationally, 1972 was witness to the first election in which 18-20 year olds were allowed to vote. Richard Nixon was returned to the White House amid the biggest government scandal in decades. The bugging of the Watergate caused a complete upheaval in the Nixon administration and talk of impeachment was common.

The beauty of the '72 Summer Olympics was suddenly shattered when Arab guerrillas kidnapped and later murdered a group of Israeli athletes. Great controversy exists over whether or not there will be more Olympic games in the future.

U.S. troops were at last pulled out of Vietnam and the P.O.W.'s were brought home amid great emotion and rejoicing - yet there is still no peace in Southeast Asia.

At Mac H, outstanding Student Government was provided by Lee Monther and Chet Boyett. They counted revision of the dress code and ASB constitution, a great rock concert, and student control of ASB funds among their many accomplishments, hopefully setting a positive trend for the future.

Amid excited whispers and rumors of leniency, Mr. Down came into our lives replacing the tyranny of the old administration with the often

Controversial but always legal policies. Nevertheless, he was unpopular with many for sitting aside senior traditions (rook harassment, lunch line crowding, etc.) but little effort was made to replace those traditions with something more positive.

The Pioneers dropped to a AA league but still most years failed to win. Most sports had a noticeable lack of seniors-
2 in football and 4 in baseball.
Early in the season, talk was of "next year" and what could be accomplished with the enthusiastic underclassmen.

In an attempt to rock the apathy, A.P. classes underwent mock presidential debates, murder trials, and state political conventions.

The decision was finally made to have Mac Hi remodelled. We're all curious to see the result.

Of big interest to many students was the lowering of the drinking age in Washington. What's taking Oregon so long?

LEADERS of CHANGE

Nowhere was this year of change more pronounced than in the dynamic ASB officers. President Lee Montheri and Vice President Chet Boyett were determined to give the offices power to run student affairs and first year principal Bud Down encouraged and helped the move.

In the spring of '72, Montheri and Boyett were key figures in a constitutional change which enabled officers to take over duty in May. They immediately proved the worth of the change by working through the summer to eliminate the highly controversial dress code of 71-72.

The annually promised constitutional revision was another pay off from this hard-working group.

Financially, many changes were also undertaken. In the fall, student council voted okay for MacHi's first rock concert, moved ASB into its own office space, and furnished the office. The spending demonstrated the council's determination to govern their own purse strings. Later in the year, Monthai earned complete student control over all ASB funds.

Today is the First Day of the Rest of your Life

The class of '73 ended their stay at Mac Hi amid controversy and change usually not meant to include them. Many worn out traditions were set aside, some involving senior privileges.

For the most part, athletic teams talked of "next year" and for many seniors it was half-day schedules, part-time work, and little contact with Mac Hi.

The "Senior Sneak Day" tradition held on by a thread as many seniors came up with pre-arranged excuses after administrators cautioned them that they couldn't sanction a sneak.

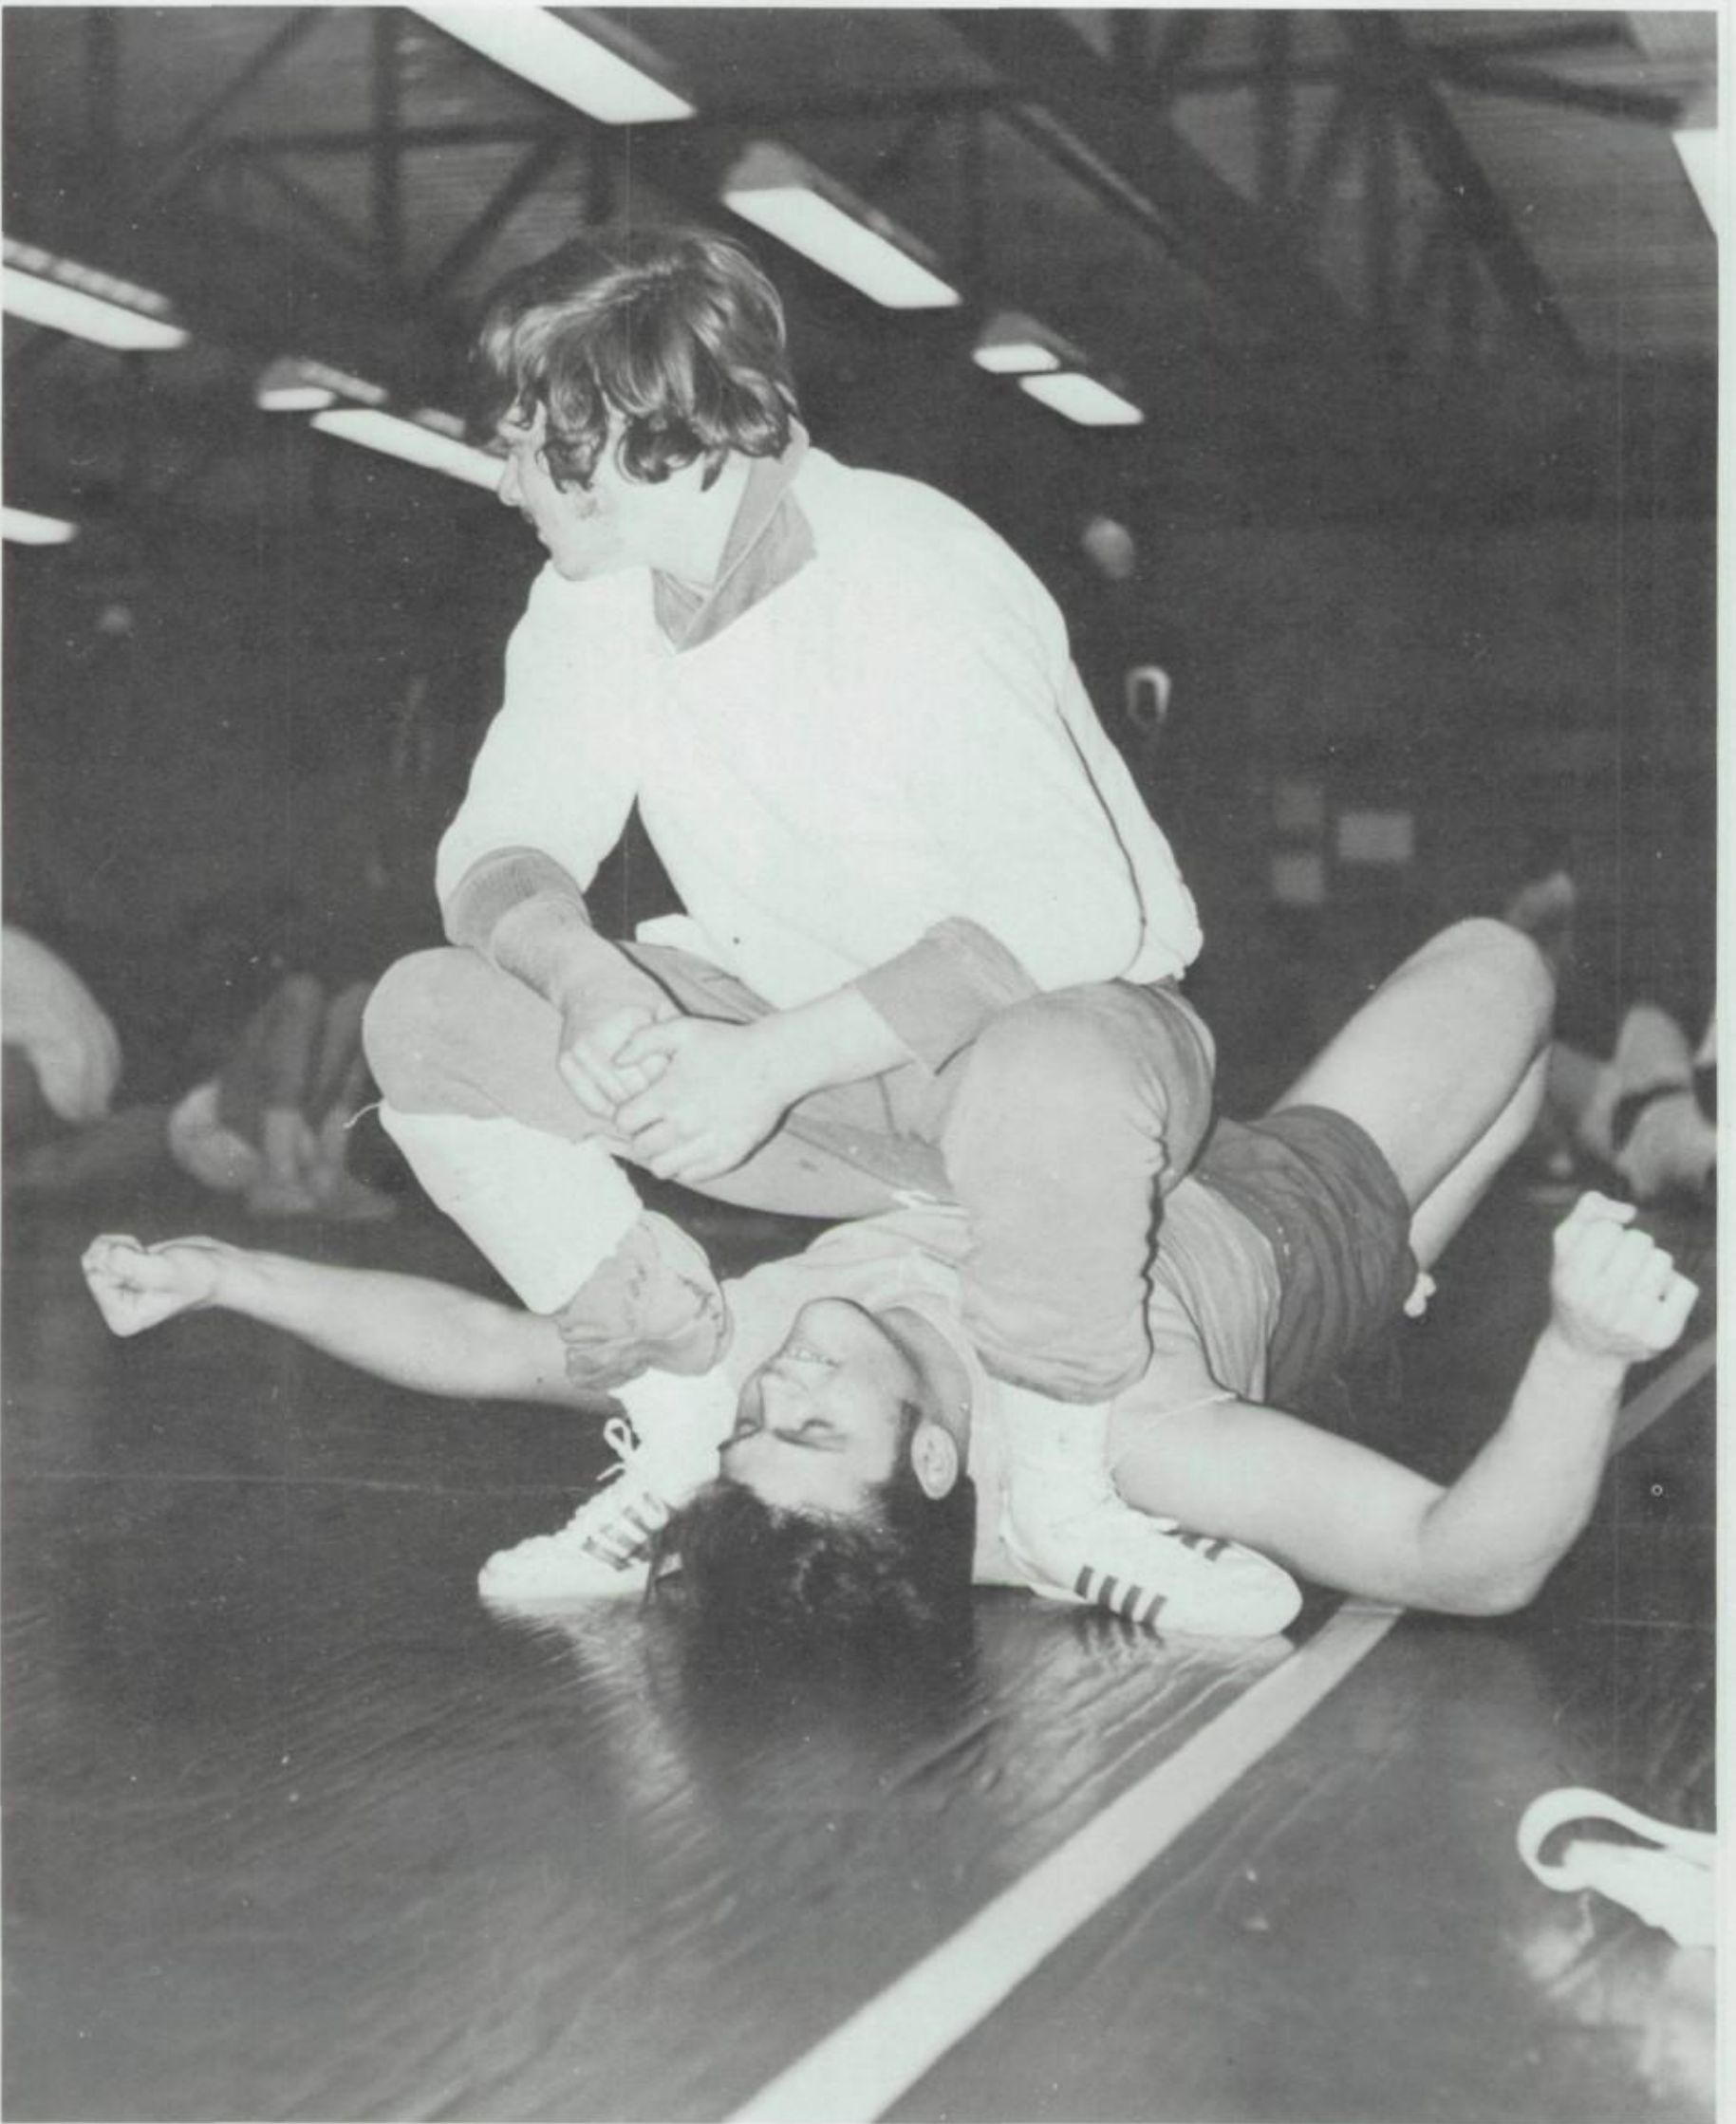

Honor Society hassles rocked the academic cream as tapping ceremonies were nullified and had to be redone and then the class voted not to recognize those graduating with honors with special seating at commencement exercises. That decision was later overruled.

Curriculum changes were geared to underclassmen with an emphasis on vocational training. Seniors were generally caught in the switch.

With the Vietnam cease fire, military draft does not hang over '73's male graduates, but an economic recession, and federal government cut backs made jobs and financial aid to college bound people fairly scarce items.

YOUTH KEYS 72 SEASON

The 1972 Football season was a problem of numbers with only two seniors (tight end Dave Miller and tackle Kent Nichols) and nine juniors turning out. The bulk of the varsity was composed of sophomores. With such a light turnout, the junior varsity schedule had to be eliminated so that every effort could be directed toward the varsity game plan. So few experienced players turned out that those who did were forced to go both ways.

Team momentum was kept alive throughout by continuing signs of improvement. The young team indicated their ability to adjust time and again as the second half play was always a marked improvement over the first. Few long drives were sustained with most of the opponent scores coming on the long play as an inexperienced Pioneer missed a tackle or his assignment. It was unfortunate that once the offense did get going, they were usually stopped not by an opponent, but by an inopportune fumble or interception.

BASEBALL '73

In a year when Pioneer victories were few and far between, the baseball team's winning ways were a welcome sight. Not until the stunning and controversial losses at Madras the last day of the season did the team's dream of a state play-off fall by the way-side.

Mac Hi. finished 8-4 in league play and 20-14 overall, up from a 4-26 record the year before.

With only eleven varsity players, first year coach Phil Raser's team accomplished many things. One of these was establishing a winning idea at Mac Hi. Raser built a team and team batting averages bested '72's best. Defense continued to improve all season and all but two will be back in '74.

GIRLS TRACK

Girls track team consisted mainly of Freshmen and Sophomores with a few upperclassmen returning. This year's Most Improved Award went to Ann McDevitt. Best prospect went to Lori Parsons. Outstanding award was given to Shirley Rencken. Shirley participated in the regional at Bend.

momma

One of the star individuals in track this year was SENIOR Jim McWilliams, setting several records in the low and high hurdles and the long jump. He went on to State to compete in all three events. Other State qualifiers were Lee Mowthair in the 440 and the mile relay team of Mowthair, Brett Bailey, Steve Coble, and Mike Walker.

VARSITY TRACK

The 1973 tennis season was a unique one indeed. With only 2 seniors and 4 juniors returning from last year, most of the team was composed of first year underclassmen. This lack of team experience showed throughout the season.

The highlight of the year was the Central Oregon Invitational where Mac Hi competed against three Central Oregon teams in two days.

Preston Winn was the only Mac Hi qualifier for district after he and other teammates went through two grueling days of sub-district competition.

Ski Club was new this year, electing Scott Rice (below top) president, and Brian Haasch (below center) vice president. Trips to Spout Springs and Bogus Basin (Boise) occupied the year.

FBLA again did well in district competition, sending 3 people to state. State competition - Sheryl Hanson, third in advanced accounting and Vicki McCutchen was fourth in spelling. Jeanine Long also finished within the top ten.

SPANISH

Spanish Club started their year with activities such as a piñata at Headstart.

They are making plans for an August trip to Mexico.

The highlight of the year was a six month trip to Europe taken by Senior Member Vicky McCutchen.

She stayed in England ten weeks and in Germany for fourteen weeks with a farm family.

GERMAN

FUTURE HOME MAKERS

Integration has come to FHA. Terry Wyckoff was the first male member to be admitted into FHA after 25 years of activity.

Club activities were fewer than usual due to lack of interest by many members.

In their second year of reorganization, the mechanics club undertook a number of projects.

Using a '61 olds-mobile donated by Louis Gundlach, club members Ron Karr and Scott Swearingen rebuild the engine.

In a unique money making project, this year, the Sophomore class sponsored a haunted house. The public supported them heavily and in the two nights the spook house was running, the class made about $80.00.

This year the Sophomore class also boosted the foot ball team, due to lack of upperclassmen. Coach Carter praised the boys saying we should have a great team in the years to come.
